PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Nathan E. Hessler is Managing Partner of Wegman Hessler and leads the Corporate and Business law practice. With a career spanning from product liability defense to commercial litigation to business law, Nathan is uniquely qualified to support the long-term success of his clients, using legal discipline to solve business problems. His extensive experience allows him to advise clients on a wide variety of business matters, including complex business arrangements, manufacturing law (ex., dealer agreements, international distribution, pricing policy and corporate strategy), construction law, corporate governance, succession planning, buy/sell agreement design, and a wide range of day-to-day commercial matters.

As trusted advisor to both nonprofit and privately held organizations from $200,000 to $2 billion, Nathan is known for the thorough, consultative approach he takes with clients. He makes it a priority to take the time to fully understand the facts and goals before crafting a comprehensive (and often creative) approach to reach desired outcomes or to avoid future concerns. With a keen awareness for the ramifications of various business and legal initiatives, he masterfully coordinates those initiatives to best serve his clients, effectively advising and protecting those facing legal and competitive challenges. Moreover, he helps resolve problems before they develop into potentially crippling disputes.

As part of his commitment to a high level of service, Nathan proactively orchestrates outside expertise to support his clients' best interests. This includes assembling teams of trusted advisors to address longer-term issues such as succession planning, corporate and personal estate planning, real estate development and construction, shareholder and employee matters, wealth protection, and more.
